ARCHIVES FOR LONDON

BY LAWS: a document in progress

1. Introduction

The Memorandum and articles of association for Archives for London are intended to set out the general governance and operation of AfL, including company AGMs and the regulation and operation of the board, including the election of trustees. The Memorandum and Articles of Association permit additional regulation of the affairs of Archives for London by bylaws (Mem & AA Sec 98)

These are intended to govern subscription types and levels, the operation of the advisory council, sections, groups, ad hoc committees and the election of the three archive domain places to the board of the strategic agency for archives, libraries and museums for London.

2. Membership and subscriptions

2.1 Membership is described in the Memorandum and articles of association. (Mem and AA Sections 3-9 and 46). There are two types individual and institutional. These are set out below. Institutional votes are weighted proportionate to the type of institution and, where appropriate the number of employees.

2.2 Mem & AA Sec 101 allows applicants to define their own type of membership. Sec 102 gives the trustees the final say in any disputed case.

3. User membership will normally be expected to be limited to individuals only. However unincorporated bodies or incorporated bodies defining themselves as being principally concerned with user interests would be eligible for membership of the user section. Final determination of such applications will rest with the trustees. (Mem and AA Section102).

2.4 In the case of institutional membership, the responsible officer of the institution should submit an indication of the appropriate band for employment purposes. Local authorities should use the figures that appear in the annual returns to CIPFA. Other institutions should make a return based on staff engaged in archival, local studies or related activities, not the whole organisation’s establishment. Staff or employees should be counted as one if in full time employment, or as a fraction corresponding to the percentage of time that they are employed. So employment for 18 hours per week would count as a half post.

2.5 The subscription year runs from 1 April to 31 March in the following year. Members joining before 31 December shall be deemed to have joined for the year in which their membership has commenced and shall receive relevant back copies of newsletters or other communications previously issued and still applicable. Members joining on or after 1 January shall be given the option of joining in the current year and receiving back copies of newsletters etc, or of joining for the year commencing 1 April. Members taking this option will not receive back communications for the current year, will be eligible to take part in any AfL activities, but will not be deemed to have voting rights until the year in which their membership takes effect.
